

(Regina) Paul Wilson is a poet, editor, publisher and cultural worker. He is an award-winning writer, and has published four books and has edited nearly thirty others. Through the 1980s and 1990s Wilson was instrumental in establishing innovative new programming for the Saskatchewan Writers Guild including a Manuscript Evaluation Service, a Mentorship Program for Emerging Writers, and an international conference and book fair called Gathering the Voices. He is also a founder of such programs as The Saskatchewan Book

Awards and the Saskatchewan Poet Laureate Program and is currently the Managing Editor and Co publisher with Hagios Press. He lives in Regina with his family.